

Psychological distress is common among people living with lymphedema. This presentation will educate participants about common stressors and coping strategies to combat psychological distress. Participants will learn strategies for communicating emotional distress to caregivers and health care providers and will become familiar with various resources and how to access them.